The Mom & I Everyday Maths programme is based on Singapore mathematics syllabus for primary schools. Primary school caters to school age-going children of between 7 to 12 years old. One of the key features of Singapore syllabus is that it is easy to follow and grasped. Concepts are explained in greater depth through the use of pictorial forms before proceeding to symbols and applications of these symbols. At Interactive Minds, we have developed the Singapore Primary Mathematics School Programme Package called Mom & I Everyday Maths, just for this purpose. The programme is systematically designed in accordance with the Singapore syllabus.

At Mom & I Everyday Maths, we encourage parents to become an active partner in the child's learning process. Hence this programme offers an opportunity for one of the parents to become an active participant in the child's cognitive development, which means playing a role as maths mentor and coach to your child.

In addition, the programme has also been designed to be used as a supplementary text for the students. Hence, the daily weekday worksheets are designed such that it would take the students only about 15 to 20 minutes each day to work on the sums and problems solving, so as not to overload him/her. As Singapore advances its primary school mathematics syllabus, you can be assured that your child will be getting one of the best primary school mathematics education and latest mathematics text through Mom & I Everyday Maths. As we say at Mom & I Everyday Maths, when numbers bond, everybody scores.
